Former Salem Boy Is Author Of New Book

"Time Out To Live" Is Designed To Benefit Young People

"Time Out To Live," a book dedicated to the young men and women of today—the leaders of tomorrow—by William West Tomlinson of Philadelphia, formerly of Salem, goes on sale Friday. This "guide to personal success," with an introduction by Connie Mack and illustrated by Norman Price, is published by G. P. Putnam's Sons of New York. On the cover piece the publishers comment as follows: "Although directed to young men and young women, Time Out To Live is a searching appraisal of life's purposes which readers of all ages will find stimulating and thought-provoking."

Greater Goal In Life

"Himself the victim of the materialistic urges of our modern age, the author, in his 'time out' came to see that life should be made something more than a frenzied struggle for money and position. He points out a goal in life which, when realized, brings far deeper personal satisfaction and is of infinitely greater value to the human community than could possibly result from aspirations of a purely covetous sort. Significantly, the goal he establishes brings its own rich rewards."

"Time Out To Live charts a course which every man may follow. Idealistic in a lifting sense, it is intensely realistic and practical. To young people who are asking—What is life all about? What should I strive for? What, after all, is success? Time Out To Live supplies an answer and a guide to life which in these days of mud-dled thinking and perplexing objectives should be shouted from the rooftops."

5 WORKERS DIE IN EXPLOSION

Blast Occurs In Pennsylvania Nitroglycerine Plant

(By Associated Press)
ELDRED, Pa., Oct. 18.—An explosion today shattered the explosive mixing plant of the National Powder Co. near here, killing at least five men.

Forty-five men were employed in buildings clustered about the gelatin pack plant where nitroglycerine is made, but a preliminary survey disclosed that no others had been injured.

All communication with the plant was cut off by lines of guards after the blast, but Justice of the Peace Jack Loftus said he understood the five victims had been working in the mixing plant, a stone structure.

The plant, located on the outskirts of this community of 1,000 persons, is one of the largest of its kind in northwestern Pennsylvania and probably the only one manufacturing both dynamite and nitroglycerine.

The blast ripped through the plant at 8:55 a. m., shaking scores of buildings in Eldred. There was no report of serious damage here.

The company identified the dead as Merle Eldridge, 19-year-old son of the publisher of Eldred's weekly newspaper, the Eagle; John T. Devlin, 25; Clair Wise; Cyril Lewis and Leo Davis. All were residents of Eldred except Davis, a resident of Portville, N. Y., and Lewis, who lived in Emporium, Pa.

Invitations were sent to all Christmas Seal contributors listed in the league's files. According to the league constitution all contributors are entitled to a vote for the officers and members of the board of directors for the coming year.

All persons wishing to attend the meeting are requested to mail a card to the health league, box 127, at Lisbon, if they wish a place reserved for them. There is no charge for the meeting.

COUNCIL ACTS TO GET UNPAID STREET COSTS

Assessment Ordinance Is Passed By Solons At Regular Meeting

TWO MORE JOBS TO BE STARTED

Engineer Submits Plans For $14,000 Garage For City

Repair and construction work proved the principal item of business before city council Tuesday night.

While Engineer F. S. Barckhoff presented the solons with delayed plans and specifications for the proposed city garage, council approved an ordinance levying special assessments on the S. Ellsworth, Prospect, W. Fifth and Maple st. paving jobs in an attempt to collect the $1 per foot frontage assessment from 13 property owners.

Following passage of the ordinance, the delinquent property owners have 30 days in which to pay. The unpaid accounts then will be certified to the county auditor for collection in 10 annual installments, plus a six per cent interest charge.

Unpaid Assessments

The S. Ellsworth ave. paving, which was done at a total cost of $1,883.80, shows $1,074.20 in unpaid assessments. W. Fifth st., which cost $2,081 to improve, has $320 outstanding. Prospect st. was paved at a cost of $2,167.83 of which $104.16 remains unpaid. All but $137.50 of the $2,165.60 Maple st. improvement is paid.

WPA workers were expected to put the finishing touches to the Maple st. paving today, according to the city engineer's report to council last night. Cleanup work, however, remains to be done.

Barckhoff said the Mound st. project probably would open within a few days, depending upon the release of WPA funds. He questioned the advisability of starting the Brooklyn ave. paving until Mound st. was completed. He said no release had been received on Railroad st.

Councilman C. F. Zimmerman said the paving petitions of Seventh st. property owners were in ahead of Railroad st. and that it should be paved upon completion of the Brooklyn ave. job.

Scan Garage Plans

Engineer Barckhoff laid before council plans for a garage building, to house street equipment, etc., to be erected on the grounds near the waterworks pumping station at an estimated cost of $14,003. The garage would be constructed in two sections, one 40 by 100 feet.

"You'll Pay For It" Subject Of Kiwanis Speaker's Talk

"You'll Pay For It" is the theme of an address to be delivered at a meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Memorial building Thursday by Frank B. Pauly of Columbus.

Pauly is a representative of the Ohio Emergency Committee, which has launched a vigorous campaign against the adoption of the two proposed Bigelow amendments to the Ohio Constitution. These will be voted on at the Nov. 7 general election.

A publicist all his life, Pauly has had wide experience as a newspaper publisher, editorial writer, magazine contributor and public speaker. As publicity director of the Ohio Council of Retail Merchants, he has traveled 30,000 miles the past year just in Ohio, visiting all 88 counties four to six times and addressing more than 200 audiences.

Up to four years ago, he lived in Middletown, where for a long period he was active in community work. During that time, he was district governor of Rotary International, a trustee of Miami Valley Chautauque, director of the Y. M. C. A. ## Europe Eyes Conference At Stockholm Of Neutral Nations

F. D. R. MESSAGE SENT TO KING

Expresses Support To Sweden Of Principles Of Neutrality

(By Associated Press)
WASHINGTON, Oct. 18.—President Roosevelt advised King Gustav of Sweden today that "this government joins with the governments of the other American republics in expressing its support of the principles of neutrality and order under law for which the nations represented at the Stockholm conference have, throughout their history, taken a consistent stand."

The chief executive told the King of Sweden that the conference called when tension between Soviet Russia and Finland seemed capable of leading to war, "will be followed with deep interest by the government and people of the United States."

Similar messages were sent by the governments of the 20 other American republics. The action was regarded as one of the first fruits of the recent Panama conference at which the American republics pledged themselves to adopt a common neutrality position.

President Roosevelt's message marked his second attempt in a week to aid in preserving peace between Russia and Finland. His first was a message to President Kalinin of Russia, to which he received a reply yesterday.

President Roosevelt has received a statement from President Kalinin of the Soviet union that present negotiations with Finland recognize Finnish independence and seek only to strengthen friendly cooperation between the two countries.

"FLASHER" PLAN NOT APPROVED

City Council Still Conferring With Pennsylvania Railroad Regarding Crossing Protection

Members of city council indicated last night that although tentative plans have been approved for installation of "flasher" warning signals at the W. Pershing and Wilson st. grade crossings, no definite arrangements with the Pennsylvania railroad have been reached.

The councilmen instructed the clerk to write the railroad to learn why repairs to crossings in the city, promised sometime ago by the company, had not been made.

Solicitor Lozier Caplan told council that L. P. Kulka of Alliance, who purchased the rails of the Stark Electric railway, had informed him the City of Salem could retain the rail imbedded in the streets here and may be covered with asphalt as the city has proposed.

Council's streets committee expects to get a written agreement from Kulka at a meeting here this week.

RED CROSS TO LAUNCH DRIVE

Extensive Membership Campaign Will Open Here Nov. 11

Planning an extensive campaign to enroll new members, officials of the Salem chapter of the Red Cross made arrangements for the annual Red Cross Roll Call at a meeting at the Memorial building last night.

With an outstanding record to uphold, the Salem chapter plans a more thorough solicitation for new members this year. The local chapter led the entire state in the number of members, per capita, last year.

Chairmen of various committees have been named and plans are now fully under way for the drive. Boy Scouts are among many volunteers who have offered assistance in the campaign to keep Salem at the top of the state in Red Cross membership.

President Dawson has named the following committee chairman to lead the Roll Call:

Business district, Mrs. J. R. Stratton; outlying business district, Ray Pearce; residential district, Miss Helen Deming; outlying towns, George McArthur; churches, Rev. S. T. Maginn; supplies and deliveries, William R. Hole; publicity, R. W. Hawley.

Committee chairmen are expected to name their aides this week, Dawson said. He Boy Scouts will assist in the delivery of supplies and posters.

SPEAKER FLAYS BIGELOW PLAN

Says Voters Will "Pay Dearly" If Pension Plan Is Approved

Stressing the dangers of the proposed Bigelow amendments to Ohio's economic and political future, H. W. Warwick of Youngstown declared in an address at the Memorial building last night that "voters will pay dearly if the amendments are approved."

"There is no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow," Warwick said in pointing out that increased taxes will certainly result if the first of the two amendments giving $50 a month to single persons and $80 a month to married couples are passed by voters at the Nov. 7 election.

The second Bigelow proposal, making initiation of an amendment to the Constitution or a new law possible by voters of any large city rather than by the signatures of voters from 50 counties, threatens to wreck the political structure of the state and permit small radical groups to gain control of the government, he said.

"Voters should guard against the building up of a special voting group which would hold a balance of power on matters affecting the welfare of the citizens of Ohio and the finances of the state," he added.

Trick In Proposal

Warwick disclosed that the proposed pension amendment, as it is

THREE OTHERS ARE HURT IN ROUTE 14 CRASH

Youngstown Woman, Six-Months' Old Baby Are Victims

CORONER, PATROL CONDUCT PROBE

Negroes, Riding Together, Were Enroute Home At Time

Two persons, including a six months old baby, were killed and two other persons seriously injured in a traffic accident on Route 14, east of Columbiana, at 1:30 a. m. today. The victims were all Negroes.

The accident happened when a car driven by Walter Clark, 39, of Pleasantville, N. J., enroute east, crashed into the rear of a steel laden truck, which had just pulled off the highway to make an emergency stop.

The scene was three tenths of a mile east of the junction of State Route 7, State Highway Patrolman James White said.

Woman Identified

An unidentified woman, but believed to be Mrs. Lee George Yates of Youngstown, who was riding with the Clark family, was killed instantly as was the Clark's six-months old son, Lewis.

Clark and his wife, Martha, 34, were removed to Salem City hospital. Their conditions are reported as fair.

He is believed to be suffering from a fractured pelvis and deep head lacerations. Mrs. Clark suffered a broken right arm and bad lacerations of the left knee and forehead.

Their daughter, Elizabeth Clark, 2, escaped with minor cuts and bruises, the patrol reported.

Party Was Enroute to Their Home in Pleasantville, N. J., at Time

The party was enroute to their home in Pleasantville, N. J., at the time. Patrolman White learned, Clark had been living in Struthers where he was employed. The dead woman was a friend who had decided to accompany them on the trip. After the accident, they were unable to remember her name.

The truck which Clark's automobile hit was operated by Haskell Hollingsworth, 22, of Cleveland. He was not held.

Lights Went Out

Hollingsworth told the officer he pulled from the highway immediately when the lights of his truck went out. Two oil lanterns hung on the rear of the truck, however.

Patrolman White, who was joined by the investigation team by Corporal Arnold Devan, said the truck had pulled off the highway with the exception of about eight inches of the left rear wheel. Clark's automobile was demolished when it crashed into the rear of the truck.

The bodies of the two victims were taken to the Fry funeral home at Columbiana.

SEEK INITIATIVE TO END WARFARE

Kings of Three Nations Confer With Finnish President

(By Associated Press)
Europe looked toward a Stockholm conference of northern neutral nations today for a possible initiative to end the war which has quickened lately with German raids on Britain and heavier fighting on the western front.

The Kings of Norway, Sweden and Denmark met with the President of Finland.

Though their conference ostensibly was on means of preserving neutrality and continuing trade in wartime, indications from other capitals gave the meeting a wider meaning.

Soviet Russian negotiations with Finland, coming on the heels of Russian expansion in the Baltic at the expense of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, were held up pending the outcome of the Stockholm conference.

Germans Celebrate

Germans, celebrating Nazi raiding exploits against Britain, found cause for rejoicing in their official reports that 10 enemy planes have been downed in two days, part over Germany and the rest during fighting over the British Isles.

High honors were paid Commander Prien and the crew of his submarine, who paraded in Berlin to be cheered as heroes for the sinking of the British Battleship Royal Oak in Scapa Flow Saturday.

British naval and military experts rated their submarine exploits higher than the attacks of German air raiders in the last three days.

The loss of eight German planes—the figure claimed by Britain—was considered by Britain to be greater than the minor damage inflicted by the raids, but no attempt was made to minimize concern over the sinking of the Royal Oak by a salvo of torpedoes.

It was probable the Scandinavian

After hearing opening statements by opposing counsel, the jury was taken to the scene of the accident, one mile west of East Palestine where Holman's car and a machine driven by James Pritchard of Pittsburgh collided.

Sorg was a passenger in the car driven by Pritchard, who also was indicted by the grand jury on a second degree manslaughter charge.

Defense counsel, in establishing an alibi, placed five witnesses on the stand who testified that Nelson was at home on the night the club was robbed.

President Roosevelt has received a statement from President Kallinin of the Soviet Union that present negotiations with Finland recognize Finnish independence and seek only to strengthen friendly cooperation between the two countries.

The statement, replying to a message from Mr. Roosevelt last week, was made public by the White House late yesterday. Mr. Roosevelt had expressed the hope that the Soviet Union "would make no demands on Finland which are inconsistent with the maintenance and development of amicable and peaceful relations between the two countries and the independence of each."

"FLASHER" PLAN NOT APPROVED

City Council Still Conferring With Pennsylvania Railroad Regarding Crossing Protection

Members of city council indicated last night that although tentative plans have been approved for installation of "flasher" warning signals at the W. Pershing and Wilson st. grade crossings, no definite arrangements with the Pennsylvania railroad have been reached.

The councilmen instructed the clerk to write the railroad to learn why repairs to crossings in the city, promised sometime ago by the company, had not been made.

Solicitor Lozier Caplan told council that L. P. Kulka of Alliance, who purchased the rails of the Stark Electric railway, had informed him the City of Salem could retain the rail imbedded in the streets here and may be covered with asphalt as the city has proposed.

Council's streets committee expects to get a written agreement from Kulka at a meeting here this week.

Stressing the dangers of the Proposed Bigelow amendments to Ohio's economic and political future, H. W. Warwick of Youngstown declared in an address at the Memorial building last night that "voters will pay dearly if the amendments are approved."

"There is no pot of gold at the end of the rainbow," Warwick said in pointing out that increased taxes will certainly result if the first of the two amendments giving $50 a month to single persons and $80 a month to married couples are passed by voters at the Nov. 7 election.

The second Bigelow proposal, making initiation of an amendment to the Constitution or a new law possible by voters of any large city rather than by the signatures of voters from 50 counties, threatens to wreck the political structure of the state and permit small radical groups to gain control of the government, he said.

"Voters should guard against the building up of a special voting group which would hold a balance of power on matters affecting the welfare of the citizens of Ohio and the finances of the state," he added.

RED CROSS TO LAUNCH DRIVE

Extensive Membership Campaign Will Open Here Nov. 11

Planning an extensive campaign to enroll new members, officials of the Salem chapter of the Red Cross made arrangements for the annual Red Cross Roll Call at a meeting at the Memorial building last night.

With an outstanding record to uphold, the Salem chapter plans a more thorough solicitation for new members this year. The local chapter led the entire state in the number of members, per capita, last year.

Chairmen of various committees have been named and plans are now fully under way for the drive. Boy Scouts are among many volunteers who have offered assistance in the campaign to keep Salem at the top of the state in Red Cross membership.

President Dawson has named the following committee chairman to lead the Roll Call:

Business district, Mrs. J. R. Stratton; outlying business district, Ray Pearce; residential district, Miss Helen Deming; outlying towns, George McArthur; churches, Rev. S. T. Magann; supplies and deliveries, Willis R. Hole; publicity, R. W. Hawley.

Following Shooting

CLEVELAND, Oct. 18.—Mrs. Andrew Banko, 41, was under guard at a hospital today where she was treated for scalp wounds suffered, Lakewood Police Chief L. B. Miller said, when she attempted suicide after fatally shooting her divorced husband, 44.

Chief Miller said Mrs. Banko walked nearly two miles to the police station to give herself up after the shooting. The Bankos, married 23 years, were divorced in 1938.

Chief Miller declared two notes left by Mrs. Banko, one of them addressed to her son Robert, 21, blamed her marital difficulties on another woman.

ROUTE 14 CRASH

Youngstown Woman, Six-Months' Old Baby Are Victims

CORONER, PATROL CONDUCT PROBE

Negroes, Riding Together, Were Enroute Home At Time

Two persons, including a six-months old baby, were killed and two other persons seriously injured in a traffic accident on Route 14, east of Columbiana, at 1:50 a. m. today. The victims were all Negroes.

The accident happened when a car driven by Walter Clark, 39, of Pleasantville, N. J., enroute east, crashed into the rear of a steel laden truck, which had just pulled off the highway to make an emergency stop.

The scene was three tenths of a mile east of the junction of State Route 7, State Highway Patrolman James White said.

Woman Unidentified

An unidentified woman, but believed to be Mrs. Lee George Yates of Youngstown, who was riding with the Clark family, was killed instantly as was the Clark's six-months old son, Lewis.

Clark and his wife, Martha, 34, were removed to Salem City hospital. Their conditions are reported as fair.

It is believed to be suffering from a fractured pelvis and deep head lacerations. Mrs. Clark suffered a broken right arm and bad lacerations of the left knee and forehead.

Their daughter, Elizabeth Clark, 2, escaped with minor cuts and bruises, the patrol reported.

The party was enroute to their home in Pleasantville, N. J., at the time. Patrolman White learned Clark had been living in Struthers where he was employed. The dead woman was a friend who had decided to accompany them on the trip. After the accident, they were unable to remember her name.

The truck which Clark's automobile hit was operated by Haskell Hollingsworth, 22, of Cleveland. He was not held.

Lights Went Out

Hollingsworth told the officer he pulled from the highway immediately when the lights of his truck went out. Two oil lanterns hung on the rear of the truck, however.

Patrolman White, who was joined in the investigation today by Coroner Arnold Devon, said the truck had pulled off the highway with the exception of about eight inches of the left rear wheel. Clark's automobile was demolished when it crashed into the rear of the truck.

The bodies of the two victims were taken to the Fry funeral home at Columbiana.

SEAGOING JITTERS

Rumors that Germany's highly efficient submarines have the British navy on the run are like the reports of Mark Twain's death—greatly exaggerated. By the British admiralty's own admission, the German undersea fleet coupled with the overhead forces shouldn't be underestimated, but neither should the British navy. Pending some more definitive outcome of the struggle to control the North sea, spectators must remember that propagandists are using their long-range guns and aiming torpedoes too.

If Germany did succeed in breaking the British blockade and tightening its own blockade of the British Isles, the government of the United States would have something to think about. One of the important assumptions supporting the theory of cash and carry would have to be heaved overboard. Carry would be a hollow slogan for one school of American nationalists if Great Britain lost control of the seas; they would have to revise their argument that the neutrality act should be revised in order to let the British take commercial advantage of their naval superiority.

Destruction of a British battleship and the reported destruction of other important fighting craft cannot be said to prove anything—yet. If Britain continues to lose ships the picture of the war, as Americans see it, will be changed. But the British have no intention of being beaten on the seas. Their national policy has been aimed at preventing that very thing for several centuries, and it hasn't failed them yet. The worst case of seagoing jitters on record occurred early in the World war when it really looked as though Germany were going to be queen of the seas, but at the end of the war a huge German fleet was destroyed and never replaced, with the exception of the submarines now active and a few battle cruisers.

ON APPEAL

Unfortunately, Thurman Arnold's first name isn't David, which would help to dramatize his role opposite Goliath in the justice department's fight on unjustifiable bigness. As assistant attorney general in charge of enforcing anti-trust laws, Mr. Arnold has been casting smooth, round pebbles at a great rate lately.

When the U. S. supreme court Monday agreed to pass on anti-trust litigation brought by the government against certain midwestern oil companies and Chicago milk dealers, Mr. Arnold won an important point. In both instances decisions adverse to the government had been handed down by lower courts.

The Arnold theory of trust busting is short, sweet and believable. It has nothing to do with size and everything to do with behavior. Combinations in furtherance of trade, no matter how big, are all right. Combinations in restraint of trade, big, small, or medium, are intolerable, and the justice department proposes to break them up.

It's an interesting theory that may have important bearing on the future of the United States. As a means of protecting the United States against the things it fears from abroad, Mr. Arnold's idea is worth at least 500 anti-aircraft guns.

SCORE ONE FOR DEBATE

Five dollar words may befuddle the issue, but the idea behind opposition to the 90-day credit clause in the administration's shipping bill is as cold and hard as a loan broker's heart. Europe's credit isn't good for even short-term notes. The administration will take the credit clause out of the bill.

In ordinary business transactions a 90-day note from a responsible source is almost as good as cash. But selling supplies to a belligerent is far from an ordinary business transaction. From time immemorial warring nations have stuck their creditors.

The biggest sticking on record was done at the expense of the United States in the World war. It made a deep impression, to put it mildly—deep enough that the proposal for a cash and carry bill with a 90-day credit clause didn't make sense to a country that knows the difference between cash on the line and a charge on the books. Without open debate in the senate, the government might have ignored what undoubtedly is a popular conviction that cash should mean cash, not credit.

CHRISTENING

Most favored name for Europe's latest war so far is the second World war—written as World war II sometimes, for emphasis.

At the same time, the most familiar word produced by the grist of war news is blackout. A blackout is mankind's attempt to blend itself and its works into the general pattern of darkness. It is the direct descendant of camouflage, which became common 25 years ago before aviators had learned to fly so well after dark. Blackout was invented then, but has just now come into its own.

Lacking a better name—World war II doesn't quite tell the story, besides carrying an implication of wider participation than is the fact—why shouldn't this be called the Blackout war? If the statesmen and experts have guessed correctly, its most likely effect will be the return of Europe and its decadent civilization into the general pattern of darkness.

Doctor Warns Against Ear Trouble, Needlessly Cause

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HYGIENE of the ear deals mostly with the external auditory canal and infections of the nose and throat.

The external auditory canal should not be cleaned or scratched by the introduction of hairpins, matches, toothpicks or other instruments for fear of an injury to the skin and the subsequent formation of small boils—one of the commonest causes of earache, fungus infections, etc. I have known the eardrum to be ruptured in this way. In

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Two instances I know of, chronic infection of the drum has occurred as the result of the activities of chronic match scratchers.

The formation of excessive cerumen, or ear wax, requires for its removal patient and gentle coaxing with hot water. When it becomes dried, it must be softened before removal.

Call a Doctor: Unskilled attempts at the removal of foreign bodies in the canal may push them deeper, even through the drum. Always call a doctor when baby gets a pea in the ear.

Those with chronic perforation of the drum and discharge should avoid the entrance of water in bathing or swimming by plugging the canal with lamb's wool and wearing a rubber cap over the ears.

The first hearing aid was the human palm cupped behind the ear. Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone to help his deaf wife to hear, and a primitive transmitter of electrical nature to help his deaf mother. This was a transmitter, not an amplifier. The amplifying feature was developed by Miller Reese Hutchinson while working in the laboratory of an eminent deaf man, Thomas Edison, and characteristically—characteristically of chronic invalids—Edison could never be induced to wear one.

Bone Conduction: Only about 17 years have gone by since the introduction of a feasible, convenient and efficient electric hearing aid. This depends on bone conduction. It is intended only for those (always adults) who are victims of chronic, progressive deafness that is due to bony changes in the inner ear.

What is bone conduction? In a normal person gets sound through the vibrations of the drum. In the form of deafness mentioned, the fixation of the ossicular apparatus prevents this. But sound can pass through the part of the skull and reach the organ of hearing.

SEAGOING JITTERS

Rumors that Germany's highly efficient submarines have the British navy on the run are like the reports of Mark Twain's death—greatly exaggerated. By the British admiralty's own admission, the German submarines fleet coupled with the overhead forces shouldn't be underestimated, but neither should the British navy. Pending some more definite outcome of the struggle to control the North sea, spectators must remember that propagandists are using their long-range guns and aiming torpedoes too.

If Germany did succeed in breaking the British blockade and tightening its own blockade of the British Isles, the government of the United States would have something to think about. One of the important assumptions supporting the theory of cash and carry would have to be heaved overboard. Carry would be a hollow slogan for one school of American nationalists if Great Britain lost control of the seas; they would have to revise their argument that the neutrality act should be revised in order to let the British take commercial advantage of their naval superiority.

Destruction of a British battleship and the reported destruction of other important fighting craft cannot be said to prove anything—yet. If Britain continues to lose ships the picture of the war, as Americans see it, will be changed. But the British have no intention of being beaten on the seas. Their national policy has been aimed at preventing that very thing for several centuries, and it hasn't failed them yet. The worst case of seagoing jitters on record occurred early in the World war when it really looked as though Germany were going to be queen of the seas, but at the end of the war a huge German fleet was destroyed and never replaced, with the exception of the submarines now active and a few battle cruisers.

ON APPEAL

Unfortunately, Thomas Arnold's first name isn't David, which would help to dramatize his role opposite Goliath in the justice department's fight on unjustifiableness. As assistant attorney general in charge of enforcing anti-trust laws, Mr. Arnold has been casting smooth, round pebbles at a great rate lately.

When the U. S. supreme court Monday agreed to pass on anti-trust litigation brought by the government against certain midwestern oil companies and Chicago milk dealers, Mr. Arnold won an important point. In both instances decisions adverse to the government had been handed down by lower courts.

The Arnold theory of trust busting is short, sweet and believable. It has nothing to do with size and everything to do with behavior. Combinations in furtherance of trade, no matter how big, are all right. Combinations in restraint of trade, big, small, or medium, are intolerable, and the justice department proposes to break them up.

It's an interesting theory that may have important bearing on the future of the United States. As a means of protecting the United States against the things it fears from abroad, Mr. Arnold's idea is worth at least 500 anti-aircraft guns.

SCORE ONE FOR DEBATE

Five dollar words may befuddle the issue, but the idea behind opposition to the 90-day credit clause in the administration's shipping bill is as cold and hard as a loan broker's heart. Europe's credit isn't good for even short-term notes. The administration will take the credit clause out of the bill.

In ordinary business transactions a 90-day note from a responsible source is almost as good as cash. But selling supplies to a belligerent is far from an ordinary business transaction. From time immemorial warring nations have stuck their creditors.

The biggest sticking on record was done at the expense of the United States in the World war. It made a deep impression, to put it mildly—deep enough that the proposal for a cash and carry bill with a 90-day credit clause didn't make sense to a country that knows the difference between cash on the line and a charge on the books. Without open debate in the senate, the government might have ignored what undoubtedly is a popular conviction that cash should mean cash, not credit.

CHRISTENING

Most favored name for Europe's latest war so far is the second World war—written as World war II sometimes, for emphasis.

At the same time, the most familiar word produced by the grist of war news is blackout. A blackout is mankind's attempt to blend itself and its works into the general pattern of darkness. It is the direct descendant of camouflage, which became common 25 years ago before aviators had learned to fly so well after dark. Blackout was invented then, but has just now come into its own.

Lacking a better name—World war II doesn't quite tell the story, besides carrying an implication of wider participation than is the fact—why shouldn't this be called the Blackout war? If the statesmen and experts have guessed correctly, its most likely effect will be the return of Europe and its decadent civilization into the general pattern of darkness.

Doctor Warns Against Ear Trouble, Needlessly Cause

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

HYGIENE of the ear deals mostly with the external auditory canal and infections of the nose and throat.

The external auditory canal should not be cleaned or scratched by the introduction of hairpins, matches, toothpicks or other instruments for fear of an injury to the skin and the subsequent formation of small boils—one of the commonest causes of earache, fungus infections, etc. I have known the ear drum to be ruptured in this way. In

Dr. Clendenning will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Two instances I know of, chronic infection of the drum has occurred as the result of the activities of chronic match scratchers.

The formation of excessive cerumen, or ear wax, requires for its removal patient and gentle doctored with hot water. When it becomes dried, it must be softened before removal.

Unskilled attempts at the removal of foreign bodies in the canal may push them deeper, even through the drum. Always call a doctor when baby gets a pea in the ear.

Those with chronic perforation of the drum and discharge should avoid the entrance of water in bathing or swimming by plugging the canal with clean wool and wearing a rubber cap over the ears. The first hearing aid was the human palm cupped behind the ear.

Alexander Graham Bell invented the telephone to help his deaf wife to hear, and a primitive transmitter of electrical nature to help his deaf mother. This was a transmitter, not an amplifier. The amplifying feature was developed by Miller Reese Hutchinson while working in the laboratory of an eminent deaf man, Thomas Edison, and characteristically—characteristically of chronic invalids—Edison could never be induced to wear one.

Bone Conduction: Only about 17 years have gone by since the introduction of a feasible, convenient and efficient electric hearing aid. This depends on bone conduction. It is intended only for those (always adults) who are victims of chronic, progressive deafness that is due to bony deposits in the inner ear.

What is bone conduction? A normal person gets sound through the vibrations of the drum. In the form of deafness, the fixation of the vibratory apparatus prevents this. But organ of hearing is intact, sound can pass through the part of the skull and reach organ of hearing.

The pamphlets are: "Three Ws Reducing Diet," "Indigestion, Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "The Doctors for the Treatment of Bites," "Feminine Hygiene," "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SCHOOL BOARD ISSUE APPEARS

Voters to Decide Whether Ohio Will Have Education Board

The outstanding issue in the state election campaign is whether the people are to be given a vote in controlling state educational affairs, according to a statement issued today by the State Board of Education Amendment Committee, of which Wilbur T. Shaw, Youngstown attorney and state president of the Junior Chamber of Commerce, is head.

Pointing out that the November ballots will carry an amendment to the Constitution which authorizes a state board of education for Ohio, the amendment committee urges all citizens to vote "yes" in order to safeguard their own interests.

One of it is pointed out, is one of the nation's backward states in this regard since it, along with only eight other states, has failed to provide for any direct public representation in the control of its state school office.

The situation is particularly deplorable, because investigation reveals that Ohio gives the state school office more powers and duties than any other state except New York, and yet this centralization of power has been placed in the hands of a single administrative officer without the reasonable checks that a board of citizens could provide.

This year marks the second time that the people have voted upon the question of the school office, since the amendment to the Constitution now proposed to be amended was originally adopted by popular vote in 1912. When the first vote was taken to create a superintendent of public instruction to be appointed by the governor, the functions of the state educational department were made statutory, the State Board of Education Amendment committee points out.

The lapse of a quarter century has seen the department of education's powers steadily increase," the committee says, "without any sharing of control with the public. Thus local communities have had to accept the department's dictates with no appeal except to the administrator who made the original ruling. A state board of education provides a means of review and appeal—a protection against dictatorial authority."

The committee sponsoring the state board of education amendment contends that the authority of local school boards will be respected more if the state school regulations that touch local boards are controlled by a group of laymen who know in their daily lives the problems of Ohio's communities and can appreciate school boards' difficulties.

Local school communities are victimized by the frequent changes in state school administration, the amendment committee charges, pointing out that there have been four different directors of education in the 12 years since 1927. With a state board of education, they insist that Ohio's school policy-making could be on a stable long-range basis.

Ann Rutherford and Lana Turner in a scene from "Dancing Co-Ed" at the State tonight and Thursday.

Lana Turner and Richard Carlson, two younger stars who are bidding for stardom, are teamed romantically in the musical comedy, "Dancing Co-Ed," showing at the State tonight and Thursday.

Miss Turner is seen as a slightly dumb but cute tap dancer planted in an American college by an enterprising press agent to be published as winner of a national "dancing co-ed" contest.

Film stardom awaits the winner of the contest, so to make the proposition safe, the press agent sends his clever secretary to the college with the dancer, Ann Rutherford as the secretary Leon Errol, Lee Bowman, Artie Shaw and his band and Roscoe Karns are featured in the comedy.

The film features tunes by Shaw's orchestra, the music to be heard including the theme song, "Nightmare," "One Night Stand," "And the Angels Sing" and "At Sundown." Two new numbers, Shaw originals, are "Stealing Apples" and "Racket Rhythm."

At the Grand tonight are: "The Escape," featuring Edward Norris, Kane Richmond, Amanda Duff and June Gale; and "Hawaiian Nights," with Johnny Downs, Constance Moore, Mary Carlisle and Eddie Quilian.

Schooltime means jumper-time in kindergarten. And when a bolero goes with it—like Anne Adams' pattern 4210—that's a combination no wise mother can resist! The jumper has just two easy pattern parts, excluding the pockets. It may open all down the front or simply be button-trimmed. Aren't those scalloped, wide straps enchanting? The lace or bow-trimmed blouse has a round collar and puffed sleeves. Add the jaunty bolero for a finishing touch. You may use wool or spun rayon for a school style; then, for party wear, stitch up a taffeta jumper.

Pattern 4210 is available in children's sizes 4, 6, 8, 10 and 12. Size 6, jumper, takes 1½ yards 54-inch fabric; blouse, ¾ yard 35-inch fabric; jumper and bolero, 2½ yards 35-inch fabric.

2 BOATS PICK UP SURVIVORS

British Ships Torpedoed; 300 Saved; Other Boats In Distress

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The U. S. Maritime commission said today 300 survivors had been rescued by the American liner Independence from two British ships, the 10,180-ton passenger liner Yorkline and the 3,509-ton freighter City of Mandalay, sunk about 500 miles off the coast of France.

In London, operators of the City of Mandalay said they had information the ship had been attacked and sunk.

The Yorkshire, which traveled between India and Liverpool, should have left Rangoon on Sept. 7, according to its latest available schedule.

The master of the rescue vessel Capt. C. J. McKenzie, radioed that he was taking the survivors back to Bordeaux, France, arriving there tomorrow morning.

Meanwhile, two U. S. coast guard cutters sped to the aid of two other ships in distress on the storm-tossed North Atlantic—the 13,889-ton American liner President Harding and the 3,509-ton British steamer Blairgowrie.

Capt. James E. Roberts of the President Harding notified the U. S. line offices here that he was "hope to about 800 miles from Boston, in urgent need of medical aid for many serious injured in heavy weather."

The plight of the S. S. Blairgowrie, having helplessly 160 miles south of St. John's, Newfoundland, was disclosed in an SOS picked up by the coast guard cutter Hamilton. It was going to the aid of the President Harding, 300 mile south of St. John's.

McKenzie radioed from Cape Race said it had received a message from the Blairgowrie saying the ship had lost her rudder chains.

A second U. S. coast guard cutter, the Diana, on neutrality patrol in northern waters was dispatched to aid the British vessel.

Miss Turner is seen as a slightly dumb but cute tap dancer planted in an American college by an enterprising press agent to be published as winner of a national "dancing co-ed" contest.

Film stardom awaits the winner of the contest, so to make the proposition safe, the press agent sends his clever secretary to the college with the dancer, Ann Rutherford as the secretary Leon Errol, Lee Bowman, Artie Shaw and

SOVIET'S HOPE OF PACT DIMS

Turkey's Prime Minister Says Negotiations Have Been Fruitless

(By Associated Press)

ISTANBUL, Oct. 18.—The possibility of a Soviet Russian pact with Turkey dimmed today in the wake of Prime Minister Refik Saydam's assertion that Russian demands had proved contrary to Turkish policy in the Dardanelles.

Reporting to a parliamentary group of the Republican peoples party, Saydam declared at Ankara last night that three weeks of discussion in Moscow had proved fruitless.

The prime minister said that Russian proposals were contrary to Turkish security, failed to compensate her for obligations she was asked to assume and were incompatible with Turkey's previous commitments to Great Britain and France.

He added, however, that despite the breakdown of negotiations, relations between Turkey and Russia remained friendly. Tending to confirm this statement were dispatches from Moscow telling of the hearty sendoff given Turkish Foreign Minister Sukru Saracoglu as he departed for home.

Meanwhile it was reported that formal signing of a Turkish pact with Britain might be expected this week—possibly Thursday or Friday. The agreement would bind Turkey and Britain to fight to ather in event or war in the Mediterranean.

Another Bustle Fashion

By PRUNELLA WOOD

If you wonder how some girls wear those big snoods so becomingly, in lieu of hats, lift one off someday and very likely discover a hairdo similar to this one, beneath.

BUSTLES have gone to our heads, not only on hats, but even on coiffures. We have sketched here today a "bustle" hairdo which is good by day or by night, and which requires nothing more exotic than the usual longish bob of hair to achieve. The front hair, rather shorter, is massed into a ringlet bang which can be upswep or patted down for one's own particular forehead line. The back hair is confined in ringlets low on the neck, beneath flat, deep waves which casque the hair to the skull.

The flowers, of course, are accessories for gala evening toilettes. The George Washington bow is for daytime wear and the old-fashioned name of this arrangement is a peruke—in case you run across the word outside a crossword puzzle, which may happen any day now.

VIEW EXHIBIT AT ALLIANCE

Historical Documents on Display At Y. W. C. A. Auditorium Sponsored By Women's Club

ALLIANCE, Oct. 18—Land grants signed by Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and Andrew Jackson will be included in the display of documents at the historical exhibit being sponsored here by the Alliance Federation of Women's Clubs Oct. 19, 20 and 21.

Haggart Hall, beautiful new auditorium of the Y. W. C. A., will house the exhibit which will occupy 2,400 square feet of space. The federated clubs, with the men's service organization, have recently organized the Alliance Historical society, and the exhibit aims to bring Alliance history to Alliance people.

Prim, gray Quaker bonnets, reminiscent of the early frontiers, will be among the head dresses displayed; bonnets stylish in colonial days will mingle with sailors of the Gibson girl period and hats of every intervening era.

Antique dishes and glassware, dolls, old photographs and daguerreotypes, pictures of early citizens and buildings of former days will add interest to the exhibit.

The display is expected to be a forerunner of a museum to be opened by the historical society in which to preserve Alliance documents and anything of value pertaining to its history.

Mrs. Melvin Van Winkle, chairman of the federation's committee on antiquities, and president of the society, is in general charge of the exhibit. Prominent citizens who have charge of various exhibits are: Mrs. Fred Donaldson, quilts; Mrs. Roy Saltsman, Indian collection; Norman Fellers, stamps; Mrs. Richard France, furniture; Mrs. Gertrude Ensign, period rooms; Mrs. George Pluchal, general exhibit; Mrs. J. E. Vaughan, historical manuscripts; Mrs. Russell Rolter, china and glass; Mrs. Floyd Ailes and Miss Mary Walsh, hats; Mrs. Fitzgerald, pictures and photographs; and Mrs. G. O. Thompson, dolls.

E. Liverpool Man Acquitted by Jury

LISBON, Oct. 18—A jury in the common pleas court deliberated 46 minutes Tuesday afternoon to return a verdict of not guilty in the case of Harry Nelson of East Liverpool.

Nelson was jointly indicted with Judy House, also of East Liverpool, in the robbery of the Oriole's club in that city on the night of June 10, 1939, and House, who was apprehended and returned to Mansfield as a parole violator, appeared in court testifying against Nelson.

Air Travel Gains

CHICAGO, Oct. 18—Domestic airlines flew 69,120,405 passenger miles in September, a greater number than in any previous month, Col. Edgar S. Gerrell, president of the Air Transport Association of America, reported today.

CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. VapoRub's poultice-vapor action relieves congestion of upper air passages—eases soreness of chest and back muscles—helps the youngster relax into healing sleep.

For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue to relieve the irritation. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested treatments.

"Cluster" Torpedo Technique Believed Used By Germans

By ROBERT E. BUNELLE

LONDON, Oct. 18—Private naval students today offered a theory that the heavy casualties in the sinking of the battleship Royal Oak resulted from perfection of a "cluster" torpedo technique by Nazi strategists.

Observers further suggested the loss of 786 men (latest official estimates) as influenced by darkness with nearly two-thirds of the crew below in sleeping hammocks.

A system of firing torpedoes in clusters like slugs from a shotgun is entirely plausible from a naval viewpoint, experts said. Many present-day submarines are capable of simultaneous discharges which would send three or four torpedoes streaking into a warship at vital spots.

The official British announcement on Saturday of the sinking of the Royal Oak merely said it was believed she was the victim of "U-boat action." German reports said the battleship was torpedoed, but gave no further details.

Sank Rapidly

The "cluster" reasoning further was pointed to as accounting for the speed with which the Royal Oak apparently sank. On New Year's day 1915 when the relatively old British battleship Formidable was sunk by a German submarine under cover of darkness she took two and one-half hours before going down.

In the sinking of the Royal Oak, naval experts said they believed the attacking submarine maneuvered herself directly in the path of the battleship between the customary screen of anti-submarine

Accountants Meet Near Youngstown

An address by C. P. Weiner of Dayton heads the program for the dinner meeting of the Youngstown chapter of the National Association of Cost Accountants at 6:30 tonight at the Southern Hills Country club near Youngstown.

Weiner, who is director of budgets for the Delco products division of General Motors Corp., will speak on the subject "Advantages and Control of Standard Burden Applications." The Dayton man has had wide experience in the installation of budget control systems in all of General Motors plants.

The attackers' presence could not be detected in the darkness, if she was half submerged. The bulk of the battleship makes a silhouette discernible as far as 600 yards, the experts said.

Violent renewal of Germany's under sea attacks after a lull in this type of warfare was regarded in one sense as a natural development.

New Attack Schedule

An accepted theory of submarine warfare is to have one-third of a fleet's submarines at their fighting points one-third at home being refitted, refueled and overhauled, and one-third changing stations.

Germany had most of her submarines at battle stations when the war started and this, some authorities said, accounted for the heavy losses in the first few weeks. After the first six weeks these craft were due for reconditioning.

If Germany followed this third system she would now be in a new attacking phase, they added.

Another Bustle Fashion

If you wonder how some girls wear those big snoods so becomingly, in lieu of hats, lift one off someday and very likely discover a hairdo similar to this one, beneath.

By PRUNELLA WOOD

BUSTLES have gone to our heads, not only on hats, but even on coiffures. We have sketched here today a "bustle" hairdo which is good by day or by night, and which requires nothing more exotic than the usual longish bob of hair to achieve. The front hair, rather shorter, is massed into a ringlet bang which can be upswiped or patted down for one's own particular forehead line. The back hair is confined in ringlets low on the neck, beneath flat, deep waves which cascade the hair to the skull.

The flowers, of course, are accessories for gala evening toilettes. The George Washington bow is for daytime wear and the old-fashioned name of this arrangement is a peruke-in case you run across the word outside a crossword puzzle, which may happen any day now.

VIEW EXHIBIT AT ALLIANCE

Historical Documents on Display At Y. W. C. A. Auditorium Sponsored By Women's Club

ALLIANCE, Oct. 18—Land grants signed by Thomas Jefferson, James Madison and Andrew Jackson will be included in the display of documents at the historical exhibit being sponsored here by the Alliance Federation of Women's Clubs Oct. 19, 20 and 21.

Hagart Hall, beautiful new auditorium of the Y. W. C. A., will house the exhibit which will occupy 2,400 square feet of space. The federated clubs, with the men's service organization, have recently organized the Alliance Historical society, and the exhibit aims to bring Alliance history to Alliance people.

Prim, gray Quaker bonnets, reminiscent of the early Friends, will be among the head dresses displayed; bonnets stylish in colonial days will mingle with sailors of the Gibson girl period and hats of every intervening era.

Antique dishes and glassware, dolls, old photographs and daguerotypes, pictures of early citizens and buildings of former days will add interest to the exhibit.

The display is expected to be a forerunner of a museum to be opened by the historical society in which to preserve Alliance documents and anything of value pertaining to its history.

Mrs. Melvin Van Winkle, chairman of the federation's committee on antiques, and president of the society, is in general charge of the exhibit. Prominent citizens who have charge of various exhibits are: Mrs. Fred Donaldson, quilts; Mrs. Roy Saltsman, Indian collection; Norman Fetters, stamps; Mrs. Richard France, furniture; Mrs. Gertrude Ensign, period rooms; Mrs. George Pluchal, general exhibit; Mrs. J. E. Vaughan, historical manuscripts; Mrs. Russell Rolter, china and glass; Mrs. Floyd Alles and Miss Mary Walsh, hats; Mrs. Fitzgerald, pictures and photographs; and Mrs. G. O. Thompson, dolls.

"Cluster" Torpedo Technique Believed Used By Germans

By ROBERT E. BUNNELLE.

LONDON, Oct. 18—Private naval students today offered a theory that the heavy casualties in the sinking of the battleship Royal Oak resulted from perfection of a "cluster" torpedo technique by Nazi strategists.

Observers further suggested the loss of 788 men (latest official estimates) as influenced by darkness with nearly two-thirds of the crew below in sleeping hammocks.

A system of firing torpedoes in clusters like slugs from a shotgun is entirely plausible from a naval viewpoint, experts said. Many present-day submarines are capable of simultaneous discharges which would send three or four torpedoes streaking into a warship at vital spots.

The official British announcement on Saturday of the sinking of the Royal Oak merely said it was believed she was the victim of "U-boat action." German reports said the battleship was torpedoed, but gave no further details.

Sank Rapidly

The "cluster" reasoning further was pointed to as accounting for the speed with which the Royal Oak apparently sank. On New Year's day 1915 when the relatively old British battleship Formidable was sunk by a German submarine under cover of darkness she took two and one-half hours before going down.

In the sinking of the Royal Oak, naval experts said they believed the attacking submarine maneuvered herself directly in the path of the battleship between the customary screen of anti-submarine craft. The attacker's presence could not be detected in the darkness if she was half submerged. The bulk of the battleship makes a silhouette discernible as far as 600 yards, the experts said.

Violent renewal of Germany's under sea attacks after a lull in this type of warfare was regarded in one sense as a natural development.

New Attack Schedule

An accepted theory of submarine warfare is to have one-third of a fleet's submarines at their fighting posts, one-third at home being refitted, refueled and overhauled, and one-third changing stations.

Germany had most of her submarines at battle stations when the war started and this, some authorities said, accounted for the heavy losses in the first few weeks. After the first six weeks these craft were due for reconditioning.

If Germany followed this third system she would now be in a new attacking phase, they added.

CHILDREN'S Frequent COLDS

For relieving discomforts of chest colds and night coughs, rub VapoRub on throat, chest, and back at bedtime. VapoRub's spoutice-vapor action relieves congestion of upper air passages—eases soreness of chest and back muscles—helps the youngster relax into healing sleep.

For coughing and irritated throat caused by colds, put VapoRub on the child's tongue to relieve the irritation. Then massage VapoRub on throat and chest.

For "sniffles" and misery of head colds, melt VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water. Have the child breathe in the steaming vapors. This loosens phlegm, clears air passages, makes breathing easier. Also massage VapoRub on throat and chest. Millions of families use these three time-tested treatments.

National WASHER and IRONER Week October 14 to 21

HOUSEHOLD WASHERS BETTER THAN EVER NOW

If Mrs. Rip Van Winkle should tour the stores of Salem today, after a number of five years, it is more than likely she would look at the new washer models in uncomprehending disbelief. One make has three speeds for washing fabrics of various qualities, or degrees of soiling. Another lowers to roll away beneath a sink or table when not in use and the same motor that runs the washer operates the ironer installed on the same appliance. Still another looks exactly like a kitchen table, until the top is lifted off. Regulation-type washers are better-looking, have larger tubs, handsomer finishes, than ever before. One is a cabinet model, with gleaming sides extending clear to the floor.

Some of the new models have built-in timers, so that the homemaker can set the washer to stop at the end of the proper washing period for whatever she has in the tub, and forget about it.

The new washers even are easier to handle and to move about, which is important in many homes where the washer is used in the kitchen, or in dual purpose basement quarters.

The improvements are so outstanding and so numerous, in fact, that any washer that has been used five years, or more, should be retired now in favor of one of the greatly bettered, faster, more economical models now available, with washing quality increased, operation improved, even less operating cost than before.

Ironers show just as many improvements, but ironers in general are not nearly so familiar to the average homemaker. They were introduced much later, and thus have had much less opportunity for adoption. Nevertheless, almost 1,500,000 women now use them.

Any ironer actually repeats the performance of the hand iron, but it does it automatically, without any effort or strain by the operator, and with more power and success than any woman could obtain unaided. The ironer does all this, furthermore, while the user of the appliance remains comfortably seated. The operator simply guides through the ironer whatever she may be pressing, moving a new surface into place as fast as one has been ironed. The ironer itself exerts all the pressure. Simple controls, operated by the hand, knee or foot, start and stop the simple mechanism.

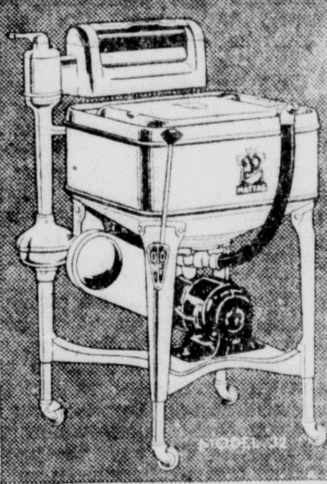

One company makes a three-speed ironer, so that a new user can "go slow," or for slower ironing of thick damp articles. Another ironer has an extra-to-and-fro ironing motion, like that of a hand-iron, for special uses. Or those with little space there is an ironer that folds away into a vertical cabinet taking up no more floor space than a chair.

With these two appliances, the washer and the ironer, dealers joining in the local demonstration point out, all the drudgery of home laundering is banished. The homemaker does away with all the old back-breaking labor that formerly was an inescapable evil in washing and ironing. Now she can be generous with cleanliness. She can afford to use fresh, sweet-smelling linens, plenty of clean clothes, as lavishly as she desires for herself, and without the long hours of household slavery that once were the price of them.

One is a cabinet model, with gleaming sides extending clear to the floor.

Some of the new models have built-in timers, so that the homemaker can set the washer to stop at the end of the proper washing period for whatever she has in the tub, and forget about it.

The new washers even are easier to handle and to move about, which is important in many homes where the washer is used in the kitchen, or in dual purpose basement quarters.

The improvements are so outstanding and so numerous, in fact, that any washer that has been used five years, or more, should be retired now in favor of one of the greatly bettered, faster, more economical models now available, with washing quality increased, operation improved, even less operating cost than before.

Ironers show just as many improvements, but ironers in general are not nearly so familiar to the average homemaker. They were introduced much later, and thus have had much less opportunity for adoption. Nevertheless, almost 1,500,000 women now use them.

Any ironer actually repeats the performance of the hand iron, but it does it automatically, without any exert or strain by the operator, and with more power and success than any woman could obtain unaided. The ironer does all this, furthermore, while the user of the appliance remains comfortably seated. The operator simply guides through the ironer whatever she may be pressing, moving a new surface into place as fast as one has been ironed. The ironer itself exerts all the pressure. Simple controls, operated by the hand, knee or foot, start and stop the simple mechanism.

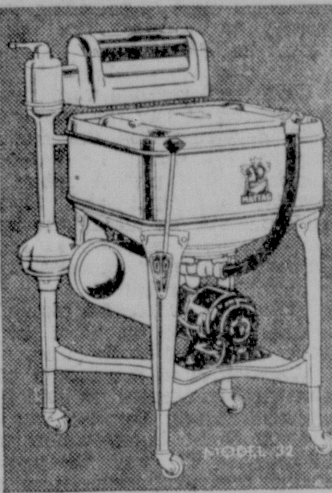

One company makes a three-speed ironer, so that a new user can "go slow," or for slower ironing or thick damp articles. Another ironer has an extra to-and-fro ironing motion, like that of a hand-iron, for special uses, or those with little space there is an ironer that folds away into a vertical cabinet taking up no more floor space than a chair.

With these two appliances, the washer and the ironer, dealers joining in the local demonstration point out, all the drudgery of home laundering is banished. The homemaker does away with all the old back-breaking labor that formerly was an inescapable evil in washing and ironing. Now she can be generous with cleanliness. She can afford to use fresh, sweet-smelling linens, plenty of clean clothes, as lavishly as she desires for herself, and without the long hours of household slavery that once were the price of them.

Says Voters Will "Pay
Dearly" If Pension
Plan Is Approved

written, provides that only persons who had been wage earners would be granted old age benefits. "This would eliminate farmers, housewives, professional men and other independent business men," he declared.

Virtual bankruptcy faces the state if the pension plan is approved, Warwick said, explaining that the old age pensions would cost Ohio $310,000,000 a year, or twice as much money as is required to operate the entire state government for a similar period.

The proposed taxes of two per cent on all real estate valued at a rate of $20,000 an acre and on one-fourth of the amount of income tax paid to the federal government by individuals and corporations would not come close to providing enough money to operate the pension plan," he said.

Revenues Exhausted
Additional revenue would have to be secured to pay the pensions, he said, declaring that the money to pay the bill would be raised by elimination of present subsidies to county, municipal and township governments, by taking the appropriations now allotted to schools, welfare and relief agencies and by a hoard of new taxes.

"The Bigelow pension plan places a first mortgage on all of the revenues of Ohio," he declared.

Warwick cited the danger of the pension amendment to Ohio's industrial future, pointing out that the increased taxes, which would be required to pay the pensions, would drive industries from Ohio to other states. "Voters should bear in mind that a vote of 'no' will help to preserve the industries of Ohio and keep them competitive with other industrial states of the union," he said.

The Youngstown man labeled the Bigelow amendments as a "challenge to the head, heart and hand" and urged voters to think, using the head and hand rather than the heart and hand.

Warwick came to Salem as a representative of the Ohio Emergency council, an organization composed of farm, business, civic, commercial and industrial groups, banded together to fight the Bigelow amendments and inform the public as to the effects of the two proposals if they are approved Nov. 7.

Hitler Showing Off

Some believed a German offensive on the western front and air raids on Britain—two attacks yesterday on the Orkney Islands, site of Britain's Scapa Flow naval base—were an attempt by Adolf Hitler to demonstrate German power and possibly influence any action by the Stockholm conferees.

French said that the German offensive, which was launched Monday, had been halted and that fighting during the night consisted only of local engagements. The Nazis were said by the French to have suffered more than 5,000 casualties.

French forces withdrew from some occupied German territory, but semi-official indications in Paris were that they still held positions on German soil threatening the vital German Saarland industrial region.

Salineville Man Arrested In Raid

LISBON, Oct. 18.—Carl Young, of R. D. to house the equipment, and the other 30 by 100 feet, which would be divided into four departments, one for meters, another for the electrician, another a repair room and the fourth for the service department foreman.

Barckhoff explained that, in order to reduce the cost, the first part of the proposed garage could be erected and the city's heavy roller and other valuable street equipment could be given protection from winter weather.

The engineer explained that $3,000 of the first $7,003 proposal would be spent in concrete approaches and floor of the garage to uphold the heavy equipment. Council scanned the plans but did not pass on them immediately.

Barckhoff said his incidental fund was exhausted and asked council for a $100 appropriation, explaining he would have to go to Columbus to get the state's approval of the garage plans.

Plan Sewer Work
The engineer urged that council start sewer construction work by December. The city usually makes its sewer improvements during cold weather when other projects can not be worked. He also said plans for the sewer improvement on S. Broadway had been presented the Pennsylvania railroad supervisor for his approval.

Councilman A. P. Morris remarked that some of the sewers in the city might be clogged by debris and urged that Service Director Frank Wilson have his crew make a survey of the sewers. Wilson said this was being done.

Council approved the light committee's recommendation to install a street light at the west end of Prospect st.

to house the equipment, and the other, 30 by 100 feet, which would be divided into four departments, one for meters, another for the electrician, another a repair room and the fourth for the service department foreman.

Barckhoff explained that, in order to reduce the cost, the first part of the proposed garage could be erected and the city's heavy roller and other valuable street equipment could be given protection from winter weather.

The engineer explained that $3,000 of the first $7,003 proposal would be spent in concrete approaches and floor of the garage to uphold the heavy equipment. Council scanned the plans but did not pass on them immediately.

Barckhoff said his incidentals fund was exhausted and asked council for a $100 appropriation, explaining he would have to go to Columbus to get the state's approval of the garage plans.

Plan Sewer Work
The engineer urged that council start sewer construction work by December. The city usually makes its sewer improvements during cold weather when other projects can not be worked. He also said plans for the undergrade sewer improvement on S. Broadway had been presented the Pennsylvania railroad supervisor for his approval.

Councilman A. P. Morris remarked that some of the sewers in the city might be clogged by debris and urged that Service Director Frank Wilson have his crew make a survey of the sewers. Wilson said this was being done.

Council approved the light committee's recommendation to install a street light at the west end of Prospect st.

SCHROEDER REVAMPS SALEM LINEUP AGAIN

QUAKERS' COACH MAKES CHANGES ON FIRST TEAM

Moves Carroll Green Out Of Line and Into Backfield

Still searching for a combination that he can depend on in all departments of the game, Coach Carl F. Schroeder has again revamped the first string lineup of his Salem High school football team.

Disatisfied with the performance of the team he used against the Quakers last week when the Quakers were handed their first defeat of the season, Schroeder made three alterations in the lineup early this week, hoping the changes will give his team a much-needed scoring punch.

The new lineup will be tested for the first time when the Quakers face Wellsville's Bengals at Reilly stadium Friday night in their fifth game of the current grid season.

Green In Backfield

The most drastic change of the recent shakeup moves Carroll Green, veteran guard, from the line into the backfield where he will appear with the Wukotich twins, Marvin and Melvin, and Don West.

Green was slated to be transferred into the backfield at the start of the season after having worked with the backs in pre-season practice, but Schroeder decided against the move and kept the 150-pound junior letterman in the forward wall where he played last season.

Green has taken over the quarterback post occupied in the first four games this season by Johnny Vello. 143-pound sophomore, who has been barking the signals and directing the Quakers' offensive maneuvers. Although he will fill Vello's position in Friday night's game, Green will not call the plays. The signal calling duties have been assigned to Marvin (Buster) Wukotich, line-smashing fullback, who was the leading scorer and ground gainer in Columbiana county last fall.

Janovec at Guard

Green's place in the line at a guard position will be filled by Joe Janovec, 102-pound sophomore, who has been tried at half-back and end in the Quakers games to date.

The other change in the lineup advances sophomore Bob Ruffing from the reserves to the varsity and left end position, formerly held by Bob Shaw. Ruffing came to Salem this fall from Grove City, Pa., where he played reserve football as a freshman last season.

The shakeup this week marks the second time that Schroeder has revised his lineup since the start of the season. His first revision came before the East Liverpool game when he moved Melvin Wukotich from center into the backfield, placed Felix DiAntonio at the center post and switched Dick Beck from guard to tackle and Leonard Persol from tackle to guard.

SALEM RUNNERS DEFEAT WARREN

Quaker Cross Country Team Gains First Victory

Capturing eight of the first 10 places, Salem High school's cross country team swamped Warren Harding High runners, 15 to 48, in a dual meet here yesterday.

Kenny O'Connell raced the two-mile course in 11 minutes and 31 seconds to lead the Quaker harriers to their first victory of the season. Lee Boone of Salem trailed O'Connell to the finish line. Alex Simon, another Quaker runner, was third.

Hudson was the first Warren distance runner to cross the finish line, coming in seventh. The Warren ace led the race for some distance, but strayed off the course and could not recover in time to finish up with the leaders.

How They Finished

Here's how runners of the two teams finished: O'Connell (S), Boone (S), Simon (S), Dolinar (S), Herning (S), Entriken (S), Hudson (S), Fier (W), Dan (S), Myers (S), Fier (W), Moga (S), Brathes (W), Sullivan (W).

The meet was the second for Coach R. B. Clarke's Salem team. The Quaker harriers were badly outclassed by the state champion Akron East team in their first match.

Clarke's team will compete against East Palestine in its third meet Friday night. The two-mile race between the Columbiana county rivals will be run as an added feature of the Salem-Wellsville football game at Reilly stadium.

Black, Roxborough Plan Future For Joe Louis

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—When Joe Louis has made the final defense of his heavyweight title (probably next summer) and retired as the only undefeated Negro champion in ring history, the Brown Bomber will settle down as proprietor of his own swank riding club and eating establishment near Detroit.

It's all mapped out for Joe by his co-managers, Julian Black and John Roxborough, just as they have arranged every other item of his existence since he came into the orbit of these two remarkably determined men.

Plan Future

For the last six months, our informant says, Roxborough and Black have been giving more thought to the champion's future than to making his matches and supervising his training. They are certain he can retire undefeated.

PITTSBURGH HAS THREE UNBEATEN GRIDIRON TEAMS

Steel City Tops Nation In Number of Good College Squads

By JOHN CAMPBELL

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—This steel center, hub of pre-season discussion which threatened its place in the football sun, topped the nation today with three undefeated, untied major college teams.

No city in the land at this date can match the collective big time accomplishments of Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne, listed in the order they are ranked by most experts. Each has won three games and both Carnegie and Duquesne have spotless defense records.

Troubles Develop

And in much the same order their troubles developed. Split by internal bickering for some time, the Pitt athletic cauldron boiled over last spring with the resignation of Dr. John Bain Sutherland, long-time head football coach. The school went strictly amateur and soon after warbling gridirons revolted, claiming they had been promised free tuition but had been billed for it.

Pitt's troubles, though, were smoothed over and Charley Bowser took over "Jocks" job along with an array of second stringers expected to be little more than stooges for the opposition.

But the Panther went west and smashed Washington, 27-6, came home and beat West Virginia, 20-0, then eked past Duke's Blue Devils, 14-13.

The road hasn't been as rocky for Carnegie Tech but the boys proved they had something beside pretty uniforms with a 3-0 victory over Temple which later licked Texas Christian. They crushed Wittenberg by 35 points and picked up 21 against Cleveland State.

Iron Out Troubles

Bill Kern, in his second season, ran into difficulties last spring when a group of Tech sophomores, holders of scholarships, asked a clear definition of their status in the face of dwindling alumni contributions. The situation cleared up, however, and Kern has about the same squad which won the mythical eastern title last year.

At Duquesne John "Little Chipper" Smith resigned before the start of spring practice and also "Buff" Donelli took over a squad of sophomores. They routed Illinois Wesleyan and Waynesburg by 31 and 20 points, respectively, and beat Manhattan 7-0.

But this week-end comes the revolution. The Panthers take on little Duquesne in the first of the city series and even if Carnegie gets past New York university at New York, the city's ranks of top-notchers will be thinned.

EAST, MIDWEST PRODUCE BEST GRID RESULTS

Ranked As Leading Sections On Nation's Football Map

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Despite the strength shown by Southeastern conference teams this season, the east and midwest still rank as the two major divisions of the football map.

On the basis of some 50 "major" intersectional tilts played so far, the mid-western sector ranks first with 12 victories and seven defeats and the east is practically even with 13 games won and nine lost.

This ranking is based upon games between teams of approximately equal importance in their respective sectors, although some "setups" are included while many border-line games between teams that are close together geographically have been tossed out.

Fatten Average

The mid-westerners, particularly Big Six conference clubs, fattened their winning average largely at the expense of rivals from the Rocky Mountain region, which has only one victory and an important tie between Utah and Santa Clara to show for ten intersectional contests.

Feel Pride

Like the other members of their race, but even more so—Black and Roxborough feel an inordinate pride in Louis, not alone for his accomplishments inside the ring, but for his conduct outside the ropes as well. They have "hand-raised" him, guiding his every move and never letting him play with matches.

Doubtless, some of their zeal has been attributable to the unpleasant memories attached to the career of the last Negro heavyweight champion before Louis—Jack Johnson. They are fiercely determined that there shall be no slight blemish on Joe's record. In future years, when he is introduced at ringside, they want Joe to get the same kind of hands that Jack Dempsey and Gene Tunney receive now.

For some time after they took over Joe's contract, Black and Roxborough allowed him exactly $5 spending money each week, and there were some weeks when he saved a good part of it. Since he got up into the big money and took himself a wife they have been somewhat more liberal with Joe's money, but they still keep a steady hand on his change pocket. He will have the better part of a million dollars, clear, when John and Julian decide it's time for him to quit fighting.

SALEM SUBS TIE GOSHEN ELEVEN

Damascus Team Leads for Three Quarters of Grid Contest

Turning in their best performance of the season, Goshen High school gridirons of Damascus battled Salem High school's reserve football team to a 12-12 tie at Reilly stadium yesterday.

Leading for three quarters of the contest, Goshen fell victim to Salem's last-minute passes and was forced to be satisfied with a tie. The Damascus eleven made consistent gains through the Salem line throughout the battle.

Wolf and Schopfer scored the Goshen touchdowns in the first and third quarters, while Phil Cozad and Elliot Hansell tallied for Salem in the third and fourth quarters. Both Salem scores were made on passes.

WALTERS LEARNS ANOTHER SPORT

Coach Jimmy Wilson Now Teaches Him Art of Duck Hunting

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—William (Bucky) Walters, the national league's most valuable player—an honor "which surpassed my fondest dreams"—is learning another sport from the man who transformed him from an infidel to one of baseball's outstanding pitchers.

The Cincinnati hurler learned of his selection by the Baseball Writers' association as he helped Jimmy Wilson, his coach and former manager, repair Wilson's boat in preparation for the duck-hunting season.

"Jimmy was responsible for my success on the mound and now he's going to show me how to shoot ducks," said the 29-year-old right hander who won 27 games for the Reds last season.

Laying aside his paint brush at a hunting club at nearby Morrisville on the Delaware river, Wilson said:

Praises Bucky

"I'm mighty proud about Bucky winning that award. I'll take the credit for giving him the pitching idea but Bucky had the ability and the heart to win—and that's what makes a successful hurler."

Five years ago Walters came back from the minors to his home town as a third baseman for the Phillies. Wilson, then manager of the club, was convinced "Bucky" had the making of a great pitcher. He made a hurler out of him and followed Walters to Cincinnati last June.

Now Bucky expects his "boss" to make as good a hunter out of him as he did a pitcher.

"I've shot plenty of pheasants and rabbits but I'm not so sure about this business of shooting from a boat," Walters chuckled.

"You'll be O. K.," replied Wilson, a veteran duck-hunter.

PRESSURE OFF, BUCKS THRIVE IN GRID RACE

Ohio State Has No Predictions To Live Up To This Year

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Ohio State's ambitious Buckeyes are employing a new (for them) technique this year in their drive toward the Big Ten football title.

In the past few years predictions that the Bucks were title-bound were a dime-a-dozen, especially among the rabid partisans in and near Columbus. But no such reports came from the Ohio city this fall, and one and all maintaining an eloquent silence on the football fortunes of Francis Schmidt's eleven.

The Bucks seem to thrive on this latter procedure. They smashed a good Missouri team, 19-0 and then neatly tagged a 13-0 deficit on Northwestern. They have shown a big, capable line and efficient offense in these two games.

Another Test

They get another tremendous test Saturday when they go to Minneapolis to engage Minnesota in the Big Ten's most important game of the week. The Gophers were hardly less impressive last week in battling Purdue to a 13-13 tie.

Both coaches yesterday reported they were emphasizing defensive measures, indicating a wholesome respect for the other's array of fleet and experienced backs.

The winner of Saturday's game will rate close behind Michigan's favored eleven as the ultimate title winner.

George Paskavan, Don Miller and Bob Peterson worked out yesterday as members of Wisconsin's revamped backfield which may work as a unit against Northwestern. At Evanston, Paul Soper's work at left halfback may earn him the starting spot for the Wildcats against the Badgers. Tackle Al Wistert, hurt early in the season, rejoined Michigan's squad as the Wolves scrimmaged Chicago foe of Michigan Saturday, was one tackle stronger with the addition of Hush Rendleman to the squad. Rendleman was on the squad a year ago but did not win a letter.

Welcome Illinois

A thousand students turned out to welcome Illinois back from the coast, but the squad lost little time getting back to work for the Indiana game. Indiana is priming its defense to solve Illini passes. Coach Mal Edward of Purdue has indicated he plans to fill the air with aerials against Michigan State Saturday. Although idle until the Wisconsin game Oct. 28, Iowa nevertheless indulged in a long scrimmage yesterday.

Bill Lenich, who suffered an injured chest during the Illini's west coast jaunt, will be lost to the team for two weeks according to club physician L. M. T. Silwell. X-rays were taken of the injury yesterday, revealing a slight chip fracture of the breast bone.

SCHROEDER REVAMPS SALEM LINEUP AGAIN

Moves Carroll Green Out Of Line and Into Backfield

Still searching for a combination that he can depend on in all departments of the game, Coach Carl F. Schroeder has again revamped the first string lineup of his Salem High school football team.

Dissatisfied with the performance of the team he used against the Quakers last week when the Quakers were handed their first defeat of the season, Schroeder made three alterations in the lineup early this week, hoping the changes will give his team a much-needed scoring punch.

The new lineup will be tested for the first time when the Quakers face Wellsville's Bengals at Reilly stadium Friday night in their fifth game of the current grid season.

Green In Backfield

The most drastic change of the recent shakeup moves Carroll Green, veteran guard from the line into the backfield where he will appear with the Wukotich twins, Marvin and Melvin, and Don West.

Green was slated to be transferred into the backfield at the start of the season after having worked with the backs in pre-season practice, but Schroeder decided against the move and kept the 150-pound junior letterman in the forward wall where he played last season.

Green has taken over the quarterback post occupied in the first four games this season by Johnny Volio, 145-pound sophomore, who has been barking the signals and directing the Quakers' offensive maneuvers. Although he will fill Volio's position in Friday night's game, Green will not call the plays.

The signal calling duties have been assigned to Marvin (Buster) Wukotich, line-smashing fullback, who was the leading scorer and ground gainer in Columbiana county last fall.

Janovec at Guard

Green's place in the line at a guard position will be filled by Joe Janovec, 102-pound sophomore, who has been tried at half-back and end in the Quakers games to date.

The other change in the lineup advances Sophomore Bob Ruffing from the reserves to the varsity left end position, formerly held by Bob Shoe. Ruffing came to Salem this fall from Grove City, Pa., where he played reserve football as a freshman last season.

The shakeup this week marks the second time that Schroeder used his lineup since the start of the season. His first revision came before the East Liverpool game when he moved Melvin Wukotich from center into the backfield, placed Felix DiAntonio at the center post and switched Dick Beck from guard to tackle and Leonard Piersol from tackle to guard.

SALEM RUNNERS DEFEAT WARREN

Quaker Cross Country Team Gains First Victory

Capturing eight of the first 10 places, Salem High school's cross country team swamped Warren Harding High runners, 15 to 48, in a dual meet here yesterday.

Kenny O'Connell raced the two-mile course in 11 minutes and 31 seconds to lead the Quaker harriers to their first victory of the season. Lee Boone of Salem trailed O'Connell to the finish line. Alex Simon, another Quaker runner, was third.

Hudson was the first Warren distance runner to cross the finish line, coming in seventh. The Warren ace led the race for some distance, but strayed off the course and could not recover in time to finish up with the leaders.

How They Finished

Here's how runners of the two teams finished: O'Connell (S), Boone (S), Simon (S), Dolinar (S), Horning (S), Enright (S), Hudson (W), Risk (W), Dan (S), Myers (S), Fier (W), Moga (S), Brathes (W), Sullivan (W).

The meet was the second for Coach R. B. Clarke's Salem team. The Quaker harriers were badly outclassed by the state champion Akron East team in their first match.

Clarke's team will compete against East Palestine in its third meet Friday night. The two-mile race between the Columbiana county rivals will be run as an added feature of the Salem-Wellsville football game at Reilly stadium.

Black, Roxborough Plan Future For Joe Louis

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—When Joe Louis has made the final defense of his heavyweight title (probably next summer) and retired as the only undefeated Negro champion in ring history, the Brown Bomber will settle down as proprietor of his own swank riding club and eating establishment near Detroit.

It's all mapped out for Joe by his co-managers, Julian Black and John Roxborough, just as they have arranged every other item of his existence since he came into the orbit of these two remarkably determined men.

Plan Future

For the last six months, our informant says, Roxborough and Black have been giving more thought to the champion's future than to making his matches and supervising his training. They are certain he can retire undefeated.

PITTSBURGH HAS THREE UNBEATEN GRIDIRON TEAMS

Steel City Tops Nation In Number of Good College Squads

By JOHN CAMPBELL

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 18.—This steel center, hub of pre-season discussion which threatened its place in the football sun, topped the nation today with three undefeated, untied major college elevens.

No city in the land at this date can match the collective big time accomplishments of Pitt, Carnegie Tech and Duquesne, listed in the order they are ranked by most experts. Each has won three games and both Carnegie and Duquesne have spotless defense records.

Troubles Develop

And in much the same order their troubles developed. Split by internal bickerings for some time, the Pitt athletic cauldron boiled over last spring with the resignation of Dr. John Bain Sutherland, long-time head football coach. The school went strictly amateur and soon after yearling gridgers revolted, claiming they had been promised free tuition but had been billed for it.

Pitt's troubles, though, were smoothed over and Charlie Bowser took over "Joek's" job along with an array of second stringers expected to be little more than stooges for the opposition.

But the Panther went west and smashed Washington 27-6, came home and beat West Virginia 20-0, then skinned past Duke's Blue Devils, 14-13.

The road hasn't been as rocky for Carnegie Tech but the boys proved they had something beside pretty uniforms with a 3-0 victory over Temple which later licked Texas Christian. They crushed Wittenberg by 35 points and picked up 21 against Cleveland's Case.

Irons Out Troubles

Bill Kern, in his second season, ran into difficulties last spring when a group of Tech sophomores, holders of scholarships, asked a clear definition of their status in the face of dwindling alumni contributions. The situation cleared up, however, and Kern has about the same squad which won the mythical eastern title last year.

At Duquesne, John "Little Clipper" Smith resigned before the start of spring practice and also "Buff" Donnell took over a squad of sophomores. They routed Illinois Wesleyan and Wayneburg by 31 and 20 points, respectively, and beat Manhattan 7-0.

But this week-end comes the revolution. The Panthers take on little Duquesne in the first of the city series and even if Carnegie gets past New York university at New York, the city's ranks of top-notchers will be thinned.

EAST, MIDWEST PRODUCE BEST GRID RESULTS

Ranked As Leading Sections On Nation's Football Map

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—Despite the strength shown by Southeastern conference teams this season, the east and midwest still rank as the two major divisions of the football map.

On the basis of some 50 "major" intersectional tilts played so far, the mid-western sector ranks first with 12 victories and seven defeats and the east is practically even with 13 games won and nine lost.

Fatten Average

The mid-westerners, particularly Big Six conference clubs, fattened their winning average largely at the expense of rivals from the Rocky Mountain region, which has only one victory and an important tie between Utah and Santa Clara to show for ten intersectional contests.

Taking the Southeastern conference apart from other southern teams, however, the record shows seven victories over strong rivals in the east and southeast against three defeats. These were Georgia Tech's 17-14 loss to Notre Dame; Georgia's 13-0 loss to Holy Cross and the 12-0 defeat Texas inflicted upon Florida.

Balanced against this, Fordham has fallen before two southeastern teams, Alabama and Tulane and Rice has been beaten by Vanderbilt and Louisiana State. Other victims include Holy Cross, trounced 26-7 by L. S. U., Boston college, which lost to Florida, and Arkansas, beaten by Mississippi State.

Lesser Lights Lose

Most of the victims of the big eastern teams have been the lesser lights of the Southern conference, but the two mighty members of that loop have upheld its prestige very well. Duke walloped Colgate and lost by only one point to Pittsburgh while North Carolina conquered New York U.

The Southwest conference, always a tough league to figure out, has a record of six wins and seven losses in major intersectional games—or eight victories counting in a couple of thumpings handed to Centenary, which plays frequently in that region and in the past usually has made things tough for the big teams.

With the aid of New Mexico and St. Mary's of San Antonio, the count for the entire southwestern region, not including such major teams as play in mid-western circuits, comes to ten victories and as many defeats.

Fight Results

NEW YORK — Augie Arrellano, 150½, Mexico, outpointed Frank Young, 147½, New Haven, Conn. (8).

HOUSTON, Tex.—Jorge Morelia, 132, Monterrey, outpointed Phil Zwick, 129, Cleveland, (10).

NEW BEDFORD, Mass.—Eddie Dolan, 147, Waterbury, Conn., outpointed Babe Verilla, 149, New Bedford, (10).

Breezy Briefs Of Sport From Brietz To You

By EDDIE BRIETZ

NEW YORK, Oct. 18.—The guest referee idea has begun to hit the skids—too many sour decisions. Watch out for Al Reba, Michigan City, Ind., featherweight (30 wins in 31 fights) who is all set to crash the big time. Lefty Gomez of the Yanks leaves this week for a hunting expedition in New Brunswick.

Eastern papers are nominating Parker Hall, ex-U. of Mississippi star, now with the Cleveland Rams, as pro football's rookie of the year.

Hard Fight

There won't be a harder fought football game this week than Alabama vs Tennessee at Knoxville. And if we could get in, there's no place we'd rather be. Tommy Loughran has been granted a promoter's license and will put on his opening show Oct. 31 in one of the Philly theaters. The only way Coach Hooks Mylin of Lafayette can tell the Sweeney twins apart is that Dick has a broken tooth. Four stars to Clark Griffith for signing Stan Harris again and four more to Frank Frisen for re-hiring old Honus Wagner.

WALTERS LEARNS ANOTHER SPORT

Coach Jimmy Wilson Now Teaches Him Art of Duck Hunting

By EDDIE BRIETZ

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 18.—William (Bucky) Walters, the national league's most valuable player—an honor "which surpassed my fondest dreams" is learning another sport from the man who transformed him from an inflied to one of baseball's outstanding pitchers.

The Cincinnati hurler learned of his selection by the Baseball Writers' association as he helped Jimmy Wilson, his coach and former manager, repair Wilson's boat in preparation for the duck-hunting season.

Praises Bucky

"I'm mighty proud about Bucky winning that award. I'll take the credit for giving him the pitching idea but Bucky had the ability and the heart to win—and that's what makes a successful hurler."

Five years ago Walters came back from the minors to his home town as a third baseman for the Phillies. Wilson, then manager of the club, was convinced "Bucky" had the making of a great pitcher. He made a hurler out of him and followed Walters to Cincinnati last June.

Now Bucky expects his "boss" to make as good a hunter out of him as he did a pitcher.

"I've shot plenty of pheasants and rabbits but I'm not so sure about this business of shooting from a boat," Walters chuckled. "You'll be O. K.," replied Wilson, a veteran duck-hunter.

Today's Guest Star

Dick Freeman, Houston Chronicle: Most forlorn figures in last week's football parade were Cecil Grigg and Bill Wallace, vice scouts. They went all the way to New Orleans to tab Fordham's pass defense. Tulane didn't throw one all afternoon.

PRESSURE OFF, BUCKS THRIVE IN GRID RACE

Ohio State Has No Predictions To Live Up to This Year

By TOM SILER

CHICAGO, Oct. 18.—Ohio State's ambitious Buckeyes are employing a new (for them) technique this year in their drive toward the Big Ten football title.

In the past few years predictions that the Bucks were title-bound were a dime-a-dozen, especially among the rabid partisans in and near Columbus. But no such reports came from the Ohio city this fall, and one and all maintained an eloquent silence on the football fortunes of Francis Schmidt's eleven.

Another Test

They got another tremendous test Saturday when they got to Minneapolis to engage Minnesota in the Big Ten's most important game of the week. The Gophers were hardly less impressive last week in battling Purdue to a 13-13 tie.

Both coaches yesterday reported they were emphasizing defensive measures, indicating a wholesome respect for the other's array of fleet and experienced backs.

The winner of Saturday's game will rate close behind Michigan's favored eleven as the ultimate title winner.

George Paskavan, Don Miller and Bob Peterson worked out yesterday as members of Wisconsin's revamped backfield which may work as a unit against Northwestern. At Evanston, Paul Soper's work at left halfback may earn him the starting spot for the Wildcats against the Badgers. Tackle Al Wistert, hurt early in the season, rejoined Michigan's squad as the Wolves scrimmaged Chicago foe of Michigan Saturday. Was one tackle stronger with the addition of Hush Rendleman to the squad a year ago but did not win a letter.

Welcome Illinois

A thousand students turned out to welcome Illinois back from the coast, but the squad lost little time getting back to work for the Indiana game. Indiana is priming its defense to solve Illini passes. Coach Mal Elward of Purdue has indicated he plans to fill the air with aerials against Michigan State Saturday. Although idle until the Wisconsin game Oct. 28, Iowa nevertheless indulged in a long scrimmage yesterday.

POLLY AND HER PALS

BOWLING RESULTS

Rolling the highest series recorded by any team in a Salem bowling league this season, Kelly's service keggers posted a 2853 total as they swept three games from the Gem Shoe Shine to take over first place in the National league at the Masonic temple alleys last night.

With Mike Hutter and Keith Harris setting a fast pace, Kelly's five opened with a 251 game, increased their count to 1015 in the second game and finished with 887. Hutter hammered out a 631 series, putting together games of 217, 246 and 168, while Harris totaled 611 on games of 202, 214 and 183.

The three defeats dropped the Gem team out of first place and into a tie for the second place with the Salem News, which took two out of three games from Fitzpatrick & Strain. Other matches saw the Masons win three games with Art the Jeweler.

First and second place teams in the Owl league were idle last night as lower ranking clubs took over the spotlight at the Grate Recreation alleys. The third-place Grate Motors won three games from the Martin Tire Sales and the four-place Trades Class took two out of three games with the Sanitary Old Timers in the two Owl matches.

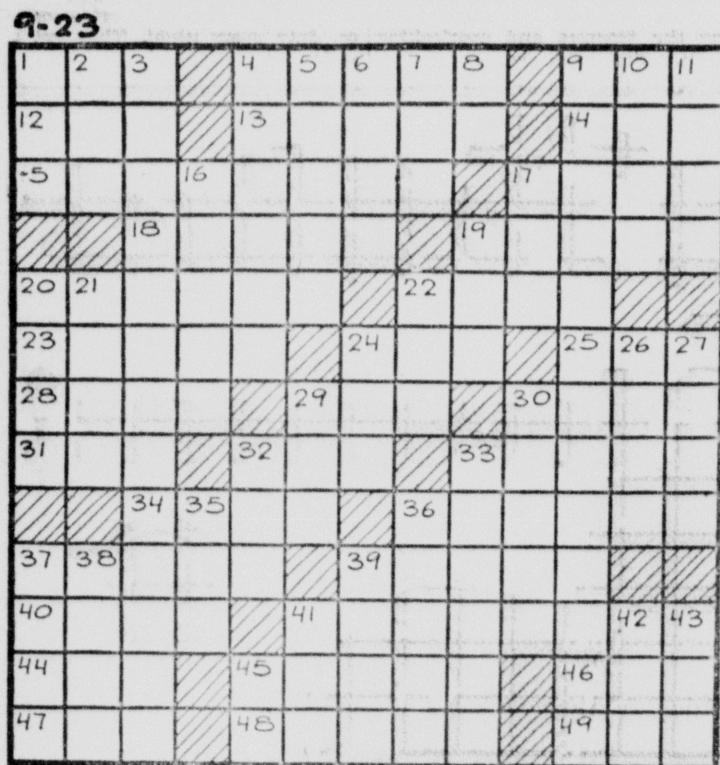

Blue Ribbon paints swept three games from the Local No. 42, N. B. O. P., to move far out in front in the City Duckpin league. In other duckpin matches, DeRienzo's Spaghetti Shoppe won three games over the Bulldogs and Martin Tire Sales took three games from Fratilia's.

BOWLING RESULTS

Rolling the highest series recorded by any team in a Salem bowling league this season, Kelly's service posted a 2853 total as they swept three games from the Gem Shoe Shine to take over first place in the National league at the Masonic temple alleys last night.

With Mike Hutter and Keith Harris setting a fast pace, Kelly's five opened with a 931 game, increased their count to 1015 in the second game and finished with 687.

Hutter hammered out a 631 series, putting together games of 217, 246 and 169, while Harris totaled 611 on games of 202, 214 and 183.

The three defeats dropped the Gem team out of first place and into a tie for the second place with the Salem News, which took two out of three games from Fitzpatrick & Strain. Other matches saw the Masons win three games with Art the Jeweler.

First and second place teams in the Owl league were idle last night as lower ranking clubs took over the spotlight at the Grate Recreation alleys. The third-place Grate Motors won three games from the Martin Tire Sales and the four-place Trades Class took two out of three games with the Sanitary Old Timers in the two Owl matches.

Blue Ribbon Paints swept three games from the Local No. 42, N. B. O. P., to move far out in front in the City Duckpin league. In other duckpin matches, DeLorenzo's Spaghetti Shoppe won three games over the Bulldogs and Martin Tire Sales took three games from Fratilia's.

SUPERIOR, Wis.—When he lost his left arm a number of years ago, Harry Mills, Superior, thought his wood carving days were over. But "just on a hunch," he picked up his tools again about a year ago and, in his own words, "found that my first carving then was better than I had done before." His work is displayed at the Superior public library.

MANBEE WHEEL BALANCER DOES THE TRICK

This machine will balance a wheel with less weights than the average balancer on the market today. Weights, costing 25c each, makes a very substantial savings to car owners.

A wheel that is out of balance one ounce develops into a force of 12 pounds at 60 miles per hour. Needless to say, such a pounding will soon cut out spindle pins and tie-rod ends and cause severe shimmy.

TO HAVE YOUR WHEELS BALANCED TODAY IS TO AVOID EXPENSE OR ACCIDENT TOMORROW!

CHAPTER XXIII

The crowd around the clubhouse exit was huge. Mike was a quarter of a mile away. Regan's name was on everybody's lips. Finally Handsome came. It took a flying wedge of cops to get him into a car, whose car Mike could not tell. She finally left, walking slowly to the subway. Handsome would probably expect her to go back to the hotel. The trains were still crowded, but she managed to squeeze into one.

So it was that Mike arrived back at the hotel before Handsome. The whole place was in an uproar. They had banners up out front, a welcome home for the conquering hero. House Manager Downey was rushing around the lobby urging everybody to keep calm and not rush Handsome when he came in.

Mike for safety, took refuge behind her magazine counter with the relief girl. Business was so brisk, she doffed her hat and fell to work. Finally Handsome arrived, and with him a troupe of cameramen, newspaper men, and just general admirers. Finally, Mr. Downey had to whisk Handsome up the back way to his quarters.

Mike waited patiently at the magazine counter. It was almost eight before Handsome called her from upstairs. "How'd you like it, Skipper?"

"Marvelous! Think, if I hadn't gone!"

"You'll always be there when I pitch!"

"Was Ace pleased?"

"He didn't say, but the old sourpuss kept coming over to me and then walking away. He wanted to say something and he didn't get his courage. How long before you'll be through?"

"Just a little while." Mike thought she detected something in Handsome's voice. "Is anything wrong?"

"No. Just the Doc wants to work on my hand tonight. Maybe you better go on home. I'll just get a bite here. Besides, I've got to meet Dusty and Marvin uptown at nine. Be a good girl and I'll see you in the morning."

Mike covered her acute disappointment, got out of the hotel as unobtrusively as possible. All the way home she tried to pretend she did not mind that Handsome did not have to meet Dusty and Marvin, that he was busy.

"I want him to be free! I've told him that!" Mike was trying hard to be honest. She must put on a cheerful face for Jimmie. He'd be so eager to hear everything.

When she came to the Shannon apartment, a crowd was gathered. "Where's Handsome?" the shout went up. Mike had to do the honors. She had to keep her chin up. Jimmie was waiting. His eyes were shining, but his disappointment showed plainly when Handsome did not come to see him, too.

"He was busy, darling. He'll see you within a day or two," Mike promised. Then she settled herself to answer questions about the game.

The next morning, Mike read what the sports writers had to say about Handsome on her way over to work. Although she was early, Handsome had left. He'd gone on to the hospital to have another X-ray of his hand. But he left a note, a note which made her feel ashamed and selfish and terribly happy.

"Skipper, everything's O. K. Marvin and Lee told me last night the boys are going to cut me in for a full share. They were swell about it. Love, and see you tonight."

Ace's Yanks dropped the next two World's Series games. Then Dusty Lee came back and won. But they lost the fifth, then won the sixth. That made it even all. The seventh game would tell the story.

"I'll have to pitch. There isn't anybody else." Handsome Regan was so distraught that Mike appealed to Wish to help her. She'd met Wish after the game, quite by accident. Both of them knew the state Handsome would be in. For his hand apparently could not stand a whole game.

Handsome came through the pass gate, fooled the crowds. For Wish had sent in word where his car was. Handsome dropped onto the seat beside Wish just as the fans spotted him, but they were away safely by that time.

"Thank the Lord!" He turned around, reached for Mike's hand, gave it a squeeze. "I'm elected, I suppose. And we'll lose that game. We've been lucky so far. It can't hold forever!"

"Don't say that, Handsome." Wish grinned. "Any guy that could get out of that spot they had us in, in that first game, well, he's just lucky, or awful smart!" "But don't you see? Ace is starting Arch Hartlin. He can't finish. I'll get the game when it's already lost." He turned to Wish: "Did you ever have a whole stadium boo you?"

Wish said: "Humph! So that's it. You can't take it!"

"I've been taking it for weeks!" "I mean you like that old pat on the back! That doesn't get you anything. They've booed Cobb and the Babe. They've booed everybody in baseball one time or another."

Handsome did not answer. "It hurts." Wish made the comment casually. "But it's good for you guys. The crowd either worships you like a pack of fools or turns on you like a bunch of yipping devils. It's one thing or the other. And none of it makes sense. But you should take it good and hard."

Handsome turned around, to look at Mike. Her eyes showed her worry but she said quickly:

"You'll be all right, once you get out there."

"I suppose so." But his voice was not reassuring.

The final Series day was cool, bright and clear. Mike shivered as she sat in her high-up seat in the stand. She had come a little early. Mike was glad she was among strangers, glad she did not have to talk.

Arch Hartlin was starting pitcher for the Yanks. Mike expected that. And it was another close game, scoreless until the sixth inning. Arch let one of their heavy hitters get away with a triple. When Arch came up for air, there were two runs in, nobody out, and a Giant on every base.

"Poor Handsome!"

When the crowd saw the big southpaw loom across the field, a mighty roar sounded. They'd been calling for him all afternoon. Regan came swinging along as though he didn't have a care in the world. Ace went out to speak to him when he got on the mound. They had quite a conference, with Marvin there too.

Handsome looked over at the man on first base. It was in this final game of the Series that Handsome really came into his own. Mike could see it. He seemed to have grown up. He had a sureness—poise—that was marvelous to watch.

Two Giants fanned on eight pitches and the third popped a foul to Catcher Barnes, leaving their teammates stranded on the bases. A Carl Hubbell could not have done better!

Of course, the strikes he poured over that plate, one after another—so fast that Giant batters couldn't even see them, let alone hit them—gave Handsome his extra swagger. It was as he went back to the dug-out that he made this crack:

"You mugs get me some runs! I'll take care of the rest."

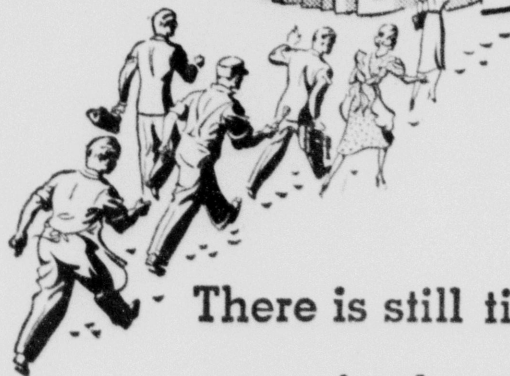

Well, he did and they did. Handsome just walked in there and polished off the boys from the Polo Grounds like a youthful Rube Waddell, Nap Rucker, or Herb Pennock!!!

Regan seemed to be without nerves. Nothing bothered him.

not to mind. But she did, terribly. Carol got her in a corner finally.

"See what I mean? Now take my advice and use a firm hand. If you don't start right, you're sunk."

But there seemed no place to start. Mike could not get near Handsome. There were too many admiring women hanging about him. When Dusty Lee came a little while later, that made matters worse for he'd started celebrating when he left the stadium and had made almost every cocktail bar he saw on the way down.

Carol gave him up. "Just don't fight. That's all I ask." Dusty drew a long face. "Queer how that hunk of World Series money makes the girls reasonable!" Everybody laughed.

It must have been 10 o'clock. Mike was starving. "Handsome, don't we ever eat?" she demanded between the bare shoulder of a brunette in marquisette, and a halo of blonde hair of a girl in crimson.

"Eat, when we can drink?" He smiled down at her affectionately. "Just have patience. We're going out for supper."

"Can we all go?" chorused the girls.

"Of course. This is a party." Wish stuck because Mike begged him to, but he was getting pretty weary. He wished Mike with interest. "So the redhead can't take it?" he grinned not unkindly. "I'm trying." Mike's eyes were

The model illustrated is the Buick SUPER model 51 four-door touring sedan $1120 delivered at Flint, Mich.*

ONE little thing will illustrate the unsparing care we're spending to make this 1940 Buick the best car we've ever built.

Take the springs — not simply the great soft-action spirals that cushion the car, but even the valve springs.

After they're shaped and tempered and finished there's likely to be here and there a tiny scratch on the surface of the steel.

*Transportation based on rail rates, state and local taxes (if any), optional equipment and accessories—extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

Such a scratch conceivably might start a fracture. So we shot-blast our springs — to heal such tiny scratches, "peening" the surface in miniature like hammered silver.

All through this massive, powerful, beautiful car you'll find special precaution like that.

For example, we used to balance by weight all sets of parts in our tornadic Dynaflex straight-eight engine, to cancel out even a hint of "rough."

We do that still, but now we do more. On special machines we electrically balance this great engine to microprecision perfection after assembly, paring metal if need be to smooth its velocity to velvet.

Seat angles, pedal positions, shock absorber travel-arc, brake areas, control tensions — every detail comes under special study.

When the experimental models had done their stuff on the General Motors proving ground, we turned 'em over to sharpshooters to punish, over thousands of miles of bad roads and good.

Out of it all comes an automobile we're mighty proud to offer — an unbeatable travelmate you will be thrilled to own.

Come drive it — see how excitingly close steel and rubber and glass can come to being alive!

Regan seemed to be without nerves. Nothing bothered him.

Out there in the fast fading September sunshine, Handsome and Catcher Ace Barnes worked like clockwork.

When Handsome pitched the final ninth inning and the boys went down, one—two—three, pandemonium broke loose. The final score was Giants 2, Yanks 3. It took twenty cops to get Handsome back into the clubhouse.

When Mike got to Wish's car, he was not there, but she was in time to see the crowds rush Handsome and Ace when they came out of the clubhouse. Wish found her a few minutes later.

"Ace and Handsome are on the air at 6:30," he explained. "I'm to take you over to Dusty's. That's where the gang is going to meet."

Mike had no desire ever to see Carol Lee again, but it was one of those things.

Wish and Mike went proudly on to Dusty's apartment. They were elated with excitement and happiness. After all, Handsome was there. Wish had discovered him, and they both loved him. They were justly proud.

Carol's apartment, a handsome duplex overlooking Central Park, was filled with guests when Wish and Mike arrived. Carol was decked in her best. She greeted Mike with fervor, put her quite at her ease. And Mike was grateful to Carol for that. Several other ball players' wives were there and, of course, talk turned to the day's game.

Mrs. Barnes had dropped in, but she couldn't stay.

"There's a party at the Inferno tonight for the boys. Aren't you all going?" Carol said they probably would.

Finally there was a great hubbub down the hall. Handsome was coming. You could hear the crowd when it got off the elevator. The door burst open, and in came the Man of the Hour with six young women clinging to his arms and his coat.

"Ladies!" Handsome stopped dramatically. "I don't know who they are, they found me in the lobby. Anyway, meet the girl friend!" Mike rushed into his arms and he kissed her.

"Very pretty," Carol remarked to Mrs. Marvin. "But just you wait until they begin making passes at him!"

The uninvited guests were asked to have drinks. They did. They then proceeded to monopolize Handsome, and so did some of the invited ones for that matter. Wish and Mrs. Marvin talked with Mike. When Ray Travis came in, Mike breathed a sigh of relief. That might break up things. Handsome had had a couple of drinks by now. She took that up with Travis.

A Woman's Place . . .

A woman's place is said to be in the kitchen, and here, at Aldershot, England, members of the women's auxiliary service take over the cooking at an army training camp. Women of the auxiliary have taken over many of the lighter duties heretofore done by men.

When Dusty Lee came a little while later, that made matters worse for he'd started celebrating when he left the stadium and had made almost every cocktail bar he saw on the way down.

Carol gave him up. "Just don't fight. That's all I ask." Dusty drew a long face: "Queer how that hunk of World Series money makes the girls reasonable!" Everybody laughed.

It must have been 10 o'clock. Mike was starving: "Handsome, don't we ever eat?" she demanded between the bare shoulder of a brunette in marquisette, and a halo of blonde hair of a girl in crimson.

"Eat, when we can drink!" He smiled down at her affectionately. "Just have patience. We're going out for supper."

"Can we all go?" chorused the girls.

"Of course. This is a party."

Wish stuck because Mike begged him to, but he was getting pretty weary. He watched Mike with interest. "So the redhead can't take it!" he grinned not unkindly.

"I'm trying," Mike's eyes were
